The History of Queens Intergroup: The Pioneer Years

In September 1991 a flyer boldly announced that "a Queens Intergroup has been started." Fourteen months later a newsletter proudly proclaimed its initial accomplishments. A 24/7 hotline was in regular operation. Exchange & Delegates meetings were being held. A Queens Area Meeting Book had been published. QIAA was gaining recognition and support.

And a new, larger office was opened in central Queens. Although the rent was low and flexible, the building itself was a wreck, requiring continual repair and renovation. The stories are legendary of holes in the roof, lack of heat, broken toilets, electrical hazards, etc. With skill and unending hard work AA handymen transformed the "pigeon loft" into a proper office. A separate meeting room was created, providing home space for several AA groups and sorely needed cash to help pay the rent. Over the years the office above the theatre became a special place for Queens AA's to meet and to serve

In its third year the corporate structure of Queens Intergroup was framed out. Delegates from the 200 or so AA groups in Queens were meeting quarterly to establish the governing policies of their central office and to elect members of its Steering Committee. The Steering Committee was in turn charged with performing the services set out in its Declaration of Purpose. Bylaws were adopted establishing how the Steering Committee was to be organized and make decisions. To administer daily operations in a business-like manner an Office Operations Committee was established. And to comply with legalities a nonprofit membership corporation qualified as a tax exempt organization was formed.

Also in 1994 an Institutions Committee was established to carry the message into Creedmoor, Faith Mission and other previously underserved alcoholic treatment centers. Supporting materials and procedures for the Hotline were created to systematize that central office function. Maintaining a core staff of forty five volunteer phone operators was then (as now) a vital and interminable task.

Computer data bases for the meeting book, the 12th Step list and mailing list were created. Less successful were efforts to maintain a regular newsletter and to create a workable AA literature sales program.

QIAA started out with a few dollars and a few commitments. No financial records from the first months survive, but minutes from the first two years never report a bank balance of more than $2,000. There is no evidence of any accounts being past due, but those first years were very hand-to-mouth. Members of the Steering Committee frequently visited groups to explain its mission and to appeal for donations and volunteers. Donated labor and materials were regularly credited against office rent due. Several small bequests were eagerly accepted. The annual meeting book printing cost of $1,700 required careful budgeting. Fundraising for AA literature for institutions was always a special concern. Gradually, more groups made larger contributions more regularly. It took almost five years before a prudent reserve could be set aside.

In 2001, www.queensaa.org was established. At the end of that same year Queens Intergroup was asked to partner with New York Inter-Group in taking AA meetings non-stop around the clock to the responders at the World Trade Center. Those meetings were a very emotional and exhausting display of the strength of the Fellowship, its individual volunteers and its service organizations. The 9/11 meetings and the last Shareathon held in the rooms over the Cinemart theatre in December, 2001 marked the end of QIAA's Pioneer Years.

OVERNIGHT TELEPHONE COORDINATORS NEEDED

QIAA has shift coordinators who are always available to support phone volunteers if questions arise. In addition to answering phones, we are always looking for daytime and nighttime coordinators.

As coordinator, you switch the phones from one volunteer to another. Daytime coordinators do that 3 times a day (10am, 2pm, 6pm). Evening coordinators do that 2 times a day (10pm and 6am). If you're a night owl or an early riser, the evening coordinator service position has your name written all over it.

Overnight - 10PM to 6AM

Open Positions

Mondays (even months - Feb., Apr., Jun., Aug, Oct., Dec.)

Fridays (even months - Feb., Apr., Jun., Aug, Oct., Dec.)
